Project Overview

- U.S. Department of Justice's Bureau of Justice Assistance has developed the National Case Closed Project as a new nationwide program designed to support law enforcement agencies in improving their violent crime clearance rates, with an emphasis on fatal and nonfatal shooting cases.
- Technical assistance will be provided to partner agencies based on an in-depth assessment of agency needs, strengths, and gaps.
- Educational materials will be developed that both project agencies and law enforcement agencies across the nation can use to improve their violent crime clearance rates.
- There is a focus on identifying and applying best practices that can be sustained and assisting agencies in tracking implementation and impact.

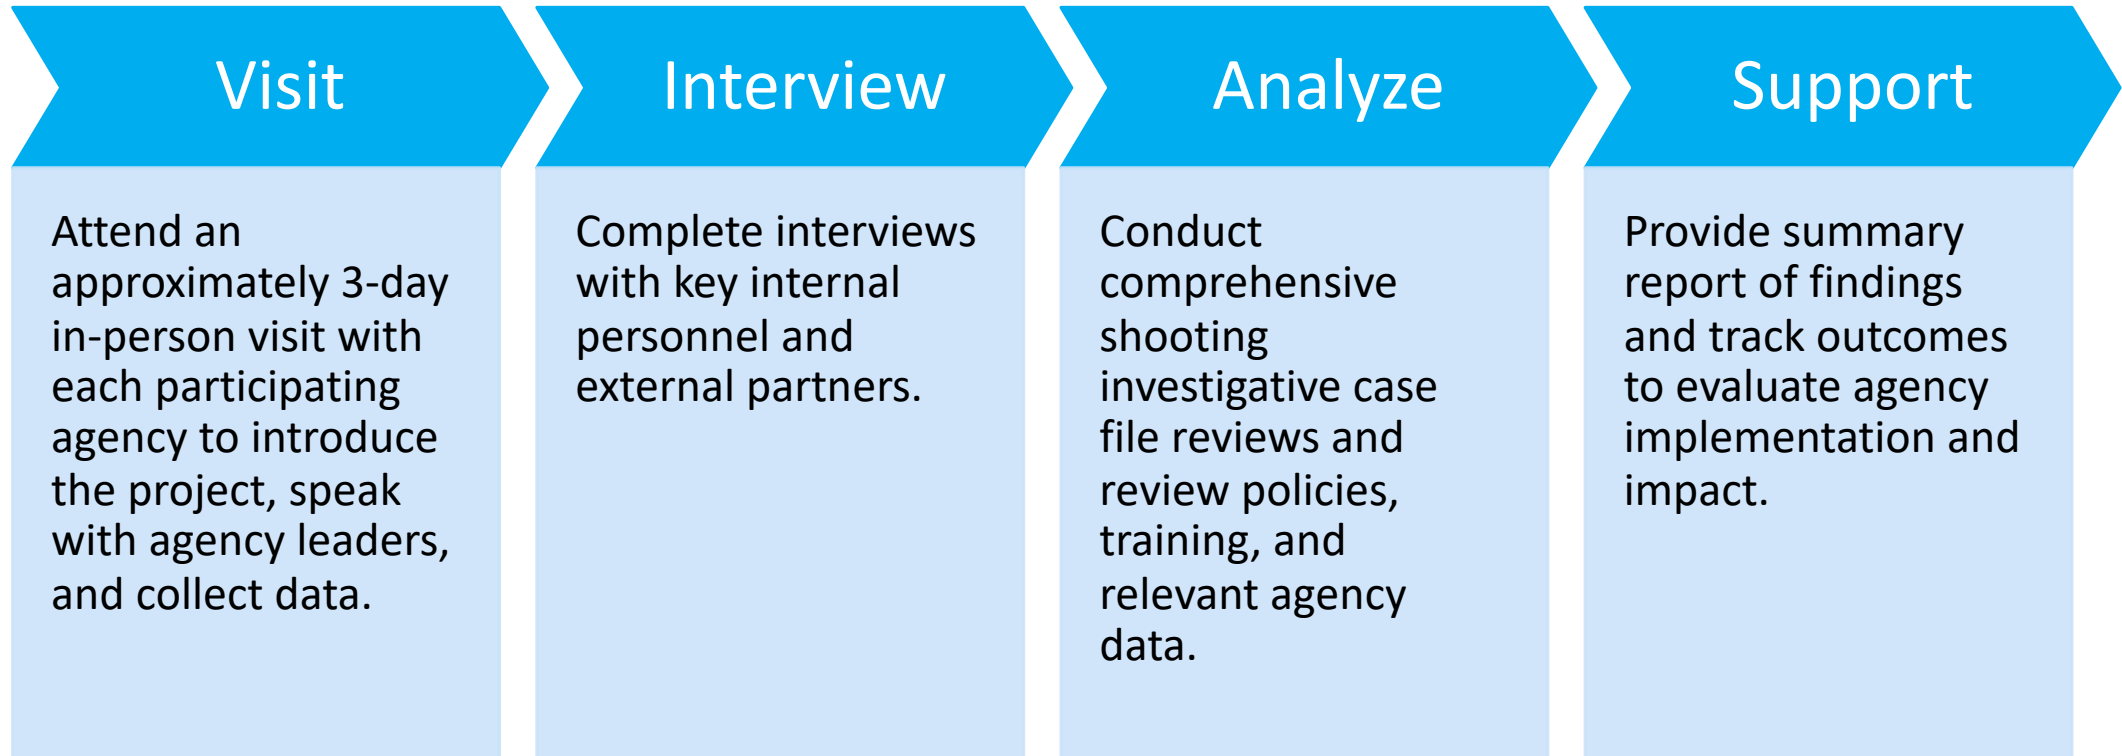

The Project Team

- RTI is an independent, nonprofit research institute dedicated to improving the human condition. We have partnered with the Bureau of Justice Assistance to lead this project.
- The project's website has a section that lists and provides a brief biography for each member of the project team. The team includes researchers and practitioners with backgrounds in law enforcement, investigations, forensic science, criminal law, criminology, victim services/advocacy, and more.
- RTI and the Bureau of Justice Assistance also provide high quality technical assistance with examples being the Sexual Assault Kit Initiative and the Comprehensive Opioid, Stimulant, and Substance Abuse Program.
